

Michelle Magdich

Hello! My name is Michelle Magdich. I'm a local jewelry artist specializing in wire-wrapping. I'm so honored and excited to be part of the Paradigm Gallery!

I first began making jewelry around 2012, though my interest goes back much further. What started at the Fort Wayne Farmers Market and YLNI farmers markets (where I sold for about three years) soon grew into a passion that took me to art fairs and galleries. Over the years, I've been blessed with faithful collectors who follow my work wherever it takes me – and I'm thrilled they can now find me here at Paradigm Gallery.

Jewelry-making keeps me grounded and joyful as I navigate life after sixty. The best part is watching someone discover that one piece – the one they connect with and instantly fall in love with. That moment is what keeps me creating, and I hope everyone who visits Paradigm Gallery finds something that makes their heart light up, too.
